It was a clever idea, and saw Quake III ported to run directly in a web browser.. Google is even turning off plugins support in, while Mozilla is changing the way plugins work for greater user control.. By doing that, the game was opened up to all the major platforms including Windows, Mac, and Linux without the headache of supporting different platforms.

If you are running the game on Windows, though, your transition in and out of games should be smoother, and server pings will be viewable to help you select the best match to join.
